

A discussion between Muhammad Maaz Arif (Muslim) and Logicked (Atheist) on the philosophical question of the existence of morality and ideas

Speakers:

Logicked (Atheist/Skeptic)
Muhammad Maaz Arif (Muslim)

[18-Oct-2021]

Summary:

The discussion focuses on whether abstract concepts, such as ideas, morals, or numbers, genuinely "exist." Materialists contend that concepts are nothing more than physical brain processes. The opposing side contends that consciousness and morality are immaterial and cannot be reduced to matter. The exchange becomes tense, and the Muslim speaker ponders that morality and consciousness must derive from an immaterial source, which he identifies as God.

Text/Transcript:

The discussion over whether morals and ideas "exist" is where the conversation begins. Participants debate the definition of "existence," the existence of abstract entities like unicorns or numbers, and whether ideas are real or merely mental.

The discussion becomes tense, with one side (Logicked<sup>1</sup>/Atheist) insisting ideas are just brain processes (a materialist view) and the other (Muhammad Maaz Arif/Muslim) arguing that consciousness, ideas, and morality are immortal realities not reducible to brain chemistry<sup>2</sup>.

Following the conversation, the Muslim speaker considers it and makes the case that morality and consciousness cannot originate from merely material origins, pointing instead to an immaterial source, ultimately concluding with a religious view that God is the origin of these immaterial realities<sup>2</sup>.

References:

1. “Logicked,” YouTube. <https://www.youtube.com/@logicked>
2. Iqbal’s Response 21C, “Muslim debates logicked | Does morality exist?,” YouTube. Jun. 09, 2023. [Online]. Available: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GbVC9SpEErg>

---

Similarity (Plagiarism) Report:

Using duplchecker.com, the article showed 0% plagiarism.

Plagiarism Checker

Duplichecker detects plagiarism from your text more accurately

Deep search Support Up to 25,000 words Accurate Reports No Ads

Try Now

Go Premium Unlock Word Limits $10/Month 5.10M+ reviews

ideas [18-Oct-2021] The discussion over whether morals and ideas "exist" is where the conversation begins. Participants debate the definition of "existence," the existence of abstract entities like unicorns or numbers, and whether ideas are real or merely mental. The discussion becomes tense, with one side (Logicked/Atheist) insisting ideas are just brain processes (a materialist view) and the other (Muhammad Maaz Arif/Muslim) arguing that consciousness, ideas, and morality are immaterial realities not reducible to brain chemistry. Following the conversation, the Muslim speaker considers it and makes the case that morality and consciousness cannot originate from merely material origins, pointing instead to an immaterial source, ultimately concluding with a religious view that God is the origin of these immaterial realities.

References: 1. "Logicked," YouTube. <https://www.youtube.com/@logicked> 2. Iqbal's Response 2IC, "Muslim debates logicked | Does morality exist?," YouTube. Jun. 09, 2023. [Online].

Choose File

1000 words limit per search | Total words: 161

4.7 / 5 ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Check Plagiarism via webpage URL

Exclude URLs (Max 5)

Enter URL (<https://abc.com>)

I'm not a robot  INCREDIA

Check Plagiarism API (<https://www.duplichecker.com/plagiarism-checker-api>)

Sources Found

Words	0
Characters	161
View More Details
1207

Plagiarism 0% 0% Exact Match 0% Partial Match

Unique 100%

A discussion between Muhammad Maaz Arif (Muslim) and Logicked (Atheist) on the philosophical question of the existence of morality and ideas [18-Oct-2021] The discussion over whether morals and ideas "exist" is where the conversation begins. Participants debate the definition of "existence," the existence of abstract entities like unicorns or numbers, and whether ideas are real or merely mental. The discussion becomes tense, with one side (Logicked/Atheist) insisting ideas are just brain processes (a materialist view) and the other (Muhammad Maaz Arif/Muslim) arguing that consciousness, ideas, and morality are immaterial realities not reducible to brain chemistry. Following the conversation, the Muslim speaker considers it and makes the case that morality and consciousness cannot originate from merely material origins, pointing instead to an immaterial source, ultimately concluding with a religious view that God is the origin of these immaterial realities.

References: 1. "Logicked," YouTube. <https://www.youtube.com/@logicked> 2. Iqbal's Response 2IC, "Muslim debates logicked | Does morality exist?," YouTube. Jun. 09, 2023. [Online]. Available: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GbVC9SpErg>

Results

Plagiarism Checker Check Grammar

AI Detector

Pro (<https://www.duplichecker.com/pricing>)

Activate Windows
Go to Settings to activate