

Pakistani Academic Muhammad Maaz Arif interviews Amir Ismail, a Palestinian Live streamer and Activist in Gaza

Speakers:

Amir Ismail

(Live streamer and Activist)

Muhammad Maaz Arif

(Pakistani Academic/Researcher)

[18-Aug-2025]

Summary:

Amir Ismail, an 18-year-old Gaza activist, focuses on the humanitarian situation, continued bombardment, malnutrition, and global inactivity on Gaza. Amir outlines the situation on the ground, condemns governments and media for their silence or misrepresentation, and emphasizes the value of citizen journalism and global engagement. Both speakers highlight solidarity, resistance, the moral obligation to speak up, and the confidence that persistent public pressure and truth-telling will eventually help end the siege and brutality.

Text/Transcript:

Amir Ismail<sup>1</sup>, an 18-year-old live streamer and activist reporting from Gaza. The host displays tremendous appreciation for Amir's bravery and dedication to his community, portraying the Palestinian struggle as a historical, moral, and religious cause linked to justice, resistance, and the prophets' land inheritance. Both speakers highlight their unwavering sympathy with Palestine and resolve to remain silent in the face of coercion or repression<sup>2</sup>.

Amir outlines Gaza's humanitarian disaster, which includes incessant shelling, famine, blocked borders, and little relief. He says that limited air drops and media narratives are used to obscure the realities of hunger and misery, while civilians, particularly children, continue to die. He emphasizes that Gaza has been purposefully made uninhabitable, and that world indifference has exacerbated the issue. Despite this, he claims that international activity and public pressure provide people in Gaza hope and strength<sup>2</sup>.

The discussion sharply condemns global governments, notably Muslim-majority countries, for failing to escalate or engage decisively. The speakers contend that nationalism, political appeasement, and fear of powerful friends have stifled collective action. They also explore how social media platforms limit pro-Palestinian voices, particularly smaller creators, while emphasizing that truth-telling cannot be silenced eternally<sup>2</sup>.

The interview ends with a message of perseverance and optimism. Amir talks about his efforts to document events, help orphans, and educate the world despite personal pain and risk. Both speakers underline the importance of every action, whether speaking, sharing, teaching, or protesting, and they think that sustained global pressure will finally lift the siege and restore justice and peace to Gaza<sup>2</sup>.

References:

1. أمير إسماعيل | Amir Ismail [Internet]. YouTube. Available from:
<https://www.youtube.com/@Amirismail100>
  2. Iqbal's Response 21C. Amir Ismail أمير إسماعيل - Live from Gaza (IR21C Podcast #13) [Internet]. YouTube. 2025. Available from:
<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=o5DiODUhzos>
-

Similarity (Plagiarism) Report:

Using dupllichecker.com, the article showed only 6% plagiarism (<19%).

Plagiarism CheckerRemove PlagiarismCheck GrammarAI Detector

Scan Properties

Sources Found1

Words329

Characters2363

View More Details

Plagiarism6%

6%Exact Match

0%Partial Match

Unique94%

Amir outlines Gaza's humanitarian dilemma, which includes incessant shelling, famine, blocked borders, and little relief. He says that limited air drops and media narratives are used to obscure the realities of hunger and misery, while civilians, particularly children, continue to die. He emphasizes that Gaza has been purposefully made uninhabitable, and that world indifference has exacerbated the issue. Despite this, he claims that international activity and public pressure provide people in Gaza hope and strength.

The discussion sharply condemns global governments, notably Muslim-majority countries, for failing to escalate or engage decisively. The speakers contend that nationalism, political appeasement, and fear of powerful friends have stifled collective action. They also explore how social media platforms limit pro-Palestinian voices, particularly smaller creators, while emphasizing that truth-telling cannot be silenced eternally.

The interview ends with a message of perseverance and optimism. Amir talks about his efforts to document events, help orphans, and educate the world despite personal pain and risk. Both speakers underline the importance of every action, whether speaking, sharing, teaching, or protesting, and they think that sustained global pressure will finally lift the siege and restore justice and peace to Gaza.

Similarity: 6%

<https://policies.google.com/privacy?hl=en>